ceived at the Printing Office; or at Edgar Snowden's Office, corner of King and Royal streets, over J. Owing's Dry Goods store.

ADVERTISEMENTS inserted at the usual rates.

There was a meeting of the Stockholders of the Richmond and Danville Railroad, on Tuesday, in Richmond. Lewis E. Harvie resigned his situation as President of the company. Mr.
A. S. Buford of Danville and Gen. Jos.
E. Johnston were then put in nomination for President. The nomination of the latter gentleman caused considerable discussion. Mr.
Flournoy, spoke warmly in favor of Gen.
Johnston.

"In the course of his address, he brought out Mr. Charles Palmer, who at first said that in a conversation he had with General Terry, the General had left him in doubt as to General Johnston's eligibility, or rather whether he would be acceptable to the authorities; but he, Mr. Palmer, nevertheless, expressed the opinion that it was very doubtful if the election of General Johnston would be acceptable.

Mr. Edmonds, of Halifax, then addressed the meeting, and said, that while there was no one who would vote for General Johnston more cheerfully than he would, yet, under the circumstances, he feared that General Johnston would not be the most available person to negotiate with the Secretary of the Treasury, on the question of the Piedmont road. Mr.
George R. Peake, too, addressed the meeting, and so did several others. In the course of Mr. Flournoy's speech he asked to be informed as to what the opinion of the Governor of the State was on the election of General Johnston, and thereupon a State proxy, said that Governor Peirpoint had that evening expressed the opinion that he did not consider it prudent or at all expedient, in fact, very impolitic, and injudicious, to elect General Johnston. When this announcement was made Judge Lyons arose and argued that the stockholders ought not to hesitate to elect Gen. Johnston because of any apprehension that he would be objectionable, for that Gen. Mahone had been elected president of a road, and Gen.
Lee's own son had been appointed to fill a place in the Virginia Military Institute, and that, moreover, General Johnston, himself, would be the first to remove all difficulty by resigning.

At this stage of the proceedings. John Harmer Gilmer arose, and, in a brief speech, said that if the meeting would adjourn until tomorrow morning, he had almost certain reason to know that General Terry would announce, as became a gallant, brave and brilliant soldier towards a fallen foe, that no objection would be raised to General Johnston.

This announcement was received with hearty cheering, and thereupon the question of adjournment was put by the Chairman, and it was carried with acclamation."

GEN. LEE'S APPLICATION FOR PARDON.— The Richmond Whig, referring to the various published statements concerning Gen. Lee's application for pardon, remarks:

"His application for pardon, if we are not mistaken, had been prepared, and was about to be transmitted to Washington, when a super-serviceable judge, holding a Federal court at Norfolk, caused an indictment to be found against him, with a number of other distinguished gentlemen, for treason. Thereupon General Lee, instead of forwarding his application to Washington, enclosed it to General Grant, with a note calling his attention to what had been done at Norfolk, and remarking that, if according to his (Gen. Grant's) understanding of the articles of capitulation, he (Gen.
Lee) was liable to indictment and prosecution for treason, then he did not feel at liberty to make the application for pardon. But if General Grant's understanding was the reverse, then General Lee would be obliged to him if he would forward the petition to the President.
General Grant, if we have not been misinformed, responded to General Lee's note promptly, and in the most complimentary and friendly terms, enclosing a letter he had addressed to Washington in forwarding the petition, taking the ground that, under the terms of the surrender, the proceeding at Norfolk was wholly inadmissible. This brought to a sudden close the plan of Judge Underwood to make his name immortal by associating it with a trial in which Robert E. Lee occupied the prisoner's dock, and at the same time brought General Lee's petition before the President in the mode, most agreeable to himself and most honorable to his successful antagonist."
